February 16, 2018 Regular Meeting Minutes

PUBLIC INPUT

Nancy Brady asked if the survey was going to be made available in a paper format. She also asked if there was a community meeting on March 2. General Manager Oys stated that with the survey length, complexity, and the added staff and consultant time to preform data entry, there were no plans to offer a paper version to property owners. She also offered property owners to contact her directly if there were any concerns. Director Shriner explained that representatives from the board will be hosting an informal coffee on March 20 at 9 a.m. for any member of the community who would like to talk with board representatives about current community issues.

CPOA Director Shriner announced that a second Strategic Planning Meeting was held where the chair, John Warren, presented a structure for a stakeholder meeting in July. The next meeting is April 4. Many of the members on the committee have strategic planning backgrounds.

Jane Roberts announced that she will be hosting a New Property Owner Welcome Committee meeting on March 20. She is looking for more volunteers to serve on the committee. The intent of the committee is to welcome new owners to the community. Communications Manager Jaime Walker will be sharing the new property owner packet from the CPOA with the committee.

CPOA Director More stated that it is a property owner to property owner committee; it is personal outreach not to replace with what the CPOA and The Club already provides to welcome new owners. She had previously talked to Suzanne Morgan with The Club and was informed that The Club membership director visits all new property owners.

Director Bentley supports the efforts of the committee. He congratulated Nukhet Saxby on the success of the stitchery group.

CPOA Director Shriner sent an email to Communications Manager Walker to research which new Club members were also new property owners. This information will be important for the committee to know.

Nancy Brady stressed that short-term rentals are an issue. She stated that her friend is moving because of the short-term rental next door.

General Manager Rachel Oys shared that the boards will be discussing legal authority for regulations, registration fees and a potential sales tax at a future meeting. A firm that tracks rentals shared that 40 properties in Cordillera are frequently rented short-term.

Director McBride explained that enclaves have covenants that restrict short-term rentals.

CPOA Director Shriner noted that in order for short-term rentals to be restricted, the CCRs and Bylaws would need to be changed. The most complaints come from properties that are regularly rented.

Nukhet Saxby asked if the gates could stop people from entering the community and if there was a record of vehicles coming and going.

Public Safety Director Kirk Pliske shared that there are cameras at each gate which record license plate numbers and vehicle type. If there is a problem, public safety can ask Vail Dispatch to pull vehicle information from state and federal databases. Homeowner information is collected when the transponders are issued. Public safety decides on a situational basis if it is something they can address or if law enforcement should be called.

John Warren shared that he was surprised to learn that there was no oversight regarding the enclave boards; that enclaves can do what they want regarding rental policies. He was concerned that there was not consistency with the CPOA.

Legal Counsel Alan Pogue explained that enclaves are subject to the master association CPOA bylaws and CCRs; however, they can have more restrictive covenants. They are governed by their own board and therefore the CPOA does not have legal oversight. If there is a conflict, CPOA CCRs and bylaws govern.

Management Team Report

General Manager Oys mentioned that the survey was posted to the website, emailed in a flash and a post card was sent to all property owners. Staff is verifying that only property owners are completing the survey. Another post card will be sent in the coming weeks. All property owners are encouraged to complete the survey. As of the meeting, over 115 people have completed the survey. The survey is intended to close April 6, but staff will monitor the response rate and keep it open longer if needed.

John Warren shared that the survey was discussed at the Strategic Planning Committee meeting as a critical data point for the stakeholder meeting in July.

Director Bentley shared concerns about taking the survey in two sessions.

General Manager Oys clarified that participants cannot come back into the survey and see their previous answers; however, the data is kept on the back end. She stressed that once the survey is started, it should be completed in one sitting. She further explained that facilitating a PIN process would be a significant challenge. Staff previously issued PINs for other programs which became problematic to manage.

Director McBride echoed this point, noting that PINs were issued for the directory.

Director George wanted another flash to be sent encouraging people to complete the survey at one time. Director Bentley agreed wanting as many people as possible to complete the survey, not just the most vocal members of the community.

CPOA Director Smith addressed the idea of paper copies. There are not the resources to input all the data for a survey of this length.

CPOA Director More thought it would be a good idea to print a paper copy so people can see the questions in advance and then think about their responses prior to completing the survey.

General Manger Oys updated the board on the progress in having a meeting with the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) regarding the access road through Hardscrabble Ranch Open Space to the Territories. Through Beth Oliver, assistant county attorney, Oys will re-request the BOCC meet with a small group of Cordillera representatives to discuss back road access. General Manager Oys further shared that the Hardscrabble Ranch Open Space project is the BOCC's top priority. They have both tax and grant money allocated to this project. The CMD/CPOA seek a dialogue about Cordillera access and possibly explore other methods with the BLM.

CPOA Director Shriner shared that there is an emergency exercise planned for this summer so people understand the evacuation routes.

General Manager Oys shared that Barry Smith with Eagle County Emergency Management will help staff facilitate a table-top exercise that will include outside agencies and communication tactics. This coincides with Community Day and the Ready Set Go program for fire prevention. Additionally, staff met with the Sherriff last month.

Director Egan noted that the current emergency exit is not through the Hardscrabble property but through Diamond Star Ranch. It is important that community members know the emergency routes.

General Manger Oys shared that a community member who lives on the Divide recently expressed concern that the Divide does not have a secondary access or emergency road out of the neighborhood. She explained that public safety would be utilized to evacuate people from the Divide if necessary.

Communications Manager Walker encouraged all members of the community to sign up for ECAAlert on ECAAlert.org. Further, Vail Dispatch will be conducting an exercise using the Wireless Emergency Alert system (WEA) on May 2. The WEA will be targeted to Vail, but spill over may occur. Anyone entering Vail during the test will receive the test alert. Anyone receiving the test alert is encouraged to follow the link contained in the message to answer a brief survey. In the event of an emergency all communications systems will be utilized.

General Manager Oys introduced Barn Manager Dominique Jones and Project Manager Clint Forstrom. She shared that the barn is proceeding with leasing horses to pilot this summer and staff developed a plan for community members to use the horses. The community operations team is completing projects earlier than normal.

General Manger Oys, Office Manager Stowell and Communications Manager Jaime Walker met with a representative with the United Way which is involved with the Eagle Valley Rummage Sale. They are looking for a location for the event and are considering the field house in Edwards and the fairgrounds in Eagle; they anticipate 3000 people at the event. They want to hold the sale over two weekends. Jaime Walker and Tracy Stowell gave a tour of the Cordillera-owned properties including Bearcat, the Café and lower barn. Logistics would need to be resolved.

CPOA Director Smith shared that the people who run the rummage sale are long-time, influential valley residents and that the majority of people who shop the sale are locals.

Director Egan has concerns that Cordillera facilities are not able to accommodate that many people, especially during the summer when most of Cordillera residents are in residence.

CPOA Director Shriner reminded the boards that he brought forth this idea because it could bring Cordillera some positive press, demonstrate to the wider community that Cordillera is not always in litigation and willing to be a part of the bigger community; it should be known that Cordillera is offering to host the sale.

Director Egan moved to not pursue further hosting the rummage sale because it stretches the community's ability to serve its residents during its busiest time of year. Seconded by Director George.

Director McBride agreed because of the traffic impacts on Squaw Creek Road. The effect on residents who want to travel in and out of Cordillera and the traffic from the sale would cause a traffic jam, thus upsetting the residents.

Director Bentley noted that staff time has not been significant. Further, he suggested it is a gesture to the entire valley to reach out and learn what is needed. He would like to know more about the impacts and at least consider hosting it. He would not vote for a project that would negatively impact Cordillera residents.

Director George expressed that the gesture was made, but 3000 people is too much for the community to handle.

CPOA Director Shriner made an opposing motion to have staff continue exploratory research into hosting the sale in Cordillera.

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the board voted three to one to not pursue the Eagle Valley Community Rummage Sale. Director Bentley dissented.

CPOA Director Grier asked what information would be needed for the boards to collectively change their minds. There may be more harm than good to the organizers if they proceed with pursuing the event here and then the boards decide not to offer community facilities.

CPOA Director Smith pointed out that more information should be gathered by staff before an informed decision can be made. The boards should not summarily dismiss the idea because it was learned there are 3000 people who attend. He noted that the CPOA board is an advisory board and would like more information to be collected.

Director Egan said that the CMD has turned the proposal down. It is the CMD's barn.

CPOA Director Shriner withdrew his motion.

Director McBride emphasized that CMD never took the position that it had ownership of staff, and while she has been on the board, CMD has always respected CPOA's decisions and input. The boards have strong documents that allow for interaction and cooperation. This should not be a decision that breaks up the CMD and CPOA.

Director Bentley reiterated that there are many obstacles, but to consider hosting it here shows that Cordillera is willing to reach beyond its gates. He is concerned about the constituency that runs the sale; they are long time locals some of whom have volunteered for the event for 40 years.

Director Egan pointed out that the problem is a practical one. Cordillera does not have the resources to handle that many people coming into the community.

General Manager Oys offered to attend the next rummage sale planning committee meeting at which time she could ask if the committee is flexible in their timeframe, what shuttles could be used to minimize traffic impacts, and gain a more accurate estimate of attendance. She would offer minimal staff support to utilize other venue contacts in the valley to demonstrate that Cordillera is a partner.

Director McBride moved to allow General Manager Oys and staff to go to the next planning meeting to get a better understanding of the impacts to Cordillera and to learn if the date of the sale could be moved, and then report back to the Boards in April. Seconded by Director Bentley.

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the Board voted three to one in favor of the motion.

Director Egan dissented.

Director McBride shared that she will be leaving the board next month and that she has worked very hard to keep the boards together. It is important to support the sentiments of both boards at all times.

General Manger Oys provided an update on the delinquent accounts. She recognized Office Manager Stowell for collecting $40,000 from three property owners last week.

CPOA Director Grier asked if there was a reason why a list of delinquent property owners was not published. It would seem that a published list would be a subtle push to get people to pay.

Legal Counsel Pogue explained that the Association had published a list in the past, which proved ineffective, especially when the property is under an LLC.

General Manager Oys requested that the process outlined by Legal Counsel Jerry Oliver be respected. Staff is reviewing O&E reports.

CPOA Director Shriner reminded the boards that the Association cannot discontinue trash, because it is a health hazard, and the CMD cannot keep people out of the gate, because the roads are public. He further explained that owners may calculate the value of the undeveloped lot as being worth less than the taxes and the assessment. For the next budget season, the CPOA will have to estimate a cost to delinquent accounts.

CPOA Director Smith mentioned that chronic abusers do not care if they are delinquent or not.

CPOA Director Shriner asked Community Operations Director Trevor Broersma about actions for owners who do not show up for their fishing beat.

Community Operations Director Broersma noted this was the first time staff was able to track no-shows.

CPOA Director Grier explained that when people book multiple beats and then do not use their allotted time/beat it keeps others from using the river. Fisherman should be able to cancel their beat via the website.

CPOA Director More asked about providing an automated call reminding people of their scheduled time/beat.

CPOA Director Smith suggested allowing more time to collect data to determine if this is a real problem. He noted that the partnership with Vail Valley Anglers was the beginning of the relationship and a mutual solution can be found to any problem.

CPOA Director Shriner referenced the management team report about the youth that jumped the fence at the ACC. Director Pliske explained that the youth were Valley Club property owners' children. Public safety verified their Club membership and asked the youth to leave the premises.

Financial Statement Review

General Manager Oys presented the financials which were included in the Board packet. A summary of updates and verifications completed to date are highlighted below:

- 2017 and 2018 adopted budget numbers are correct and in alignment with the budgets adopted by the respective boards

- 2017 payroll, benefits and workers compensation have accurately been allocated to departments within CMD or CPOA (Trailhead, VGC and Recreation)
- 2017 legal fees are recorded for CPOA and CMD; invoices were reviewed (split board meeting expenses, Rule 106 thru Sept; CPOA and CMD paid for their specific legal activities)
- 2017 service agreement is recorded (2017 budgeted amount with the split of the $160,000 for strategic planning)

Andrew Larson, CFO Systems, accepted a fulltime client and is transitioning work to Stephanie Juneau. She continues to ensure weekly responsibilities are completed in a timely manner and Andrew has transitioned all payroll functions to human resources.

Recruitment continues for an in-house accountant/finance manager.

Director Egan stressed that a balance sheet is needed in conjunction with the financials provided.

Director McBride echoed this request. She further noted the difficulty in finding a finance director. She asked about the Cordillera Valley Club (CVC) expenses.

General Manager Oys explained that the total revenue projected represents the entire budget for CVC PS operations, of which $18,050.86 CVC paid expenses directly and not through CMD (i.e. gate arm repairs, uniforms); they are current thru 2017. Oys continued by noting that the District has outstanding invoices for trailer parking; when collected these funds can be accrued to 2017.

CPOA Director Grier asked how capital expenses were being amortized. He would like to see year over year expenses and the information assembled in a way that is simple and transparent, so it is easier to know the true cost of the assets.

Directors McBride and Egan shared that depreciation and amortization are in the audit.

Marketing

Communications Manager Walker shared that four proposals were received for strategic communication, brand management and marketing: Cotton and Company, Markit Creative which previously worked with Cordillera on branding, and Webb Strategic which worked with the Lodge and Spa during the Kobe Bryant scandal and Resonance. The proposals span a spectrum of possible objectives and strategies. General Manager Oys noted that the results from the survey will be important for future direction, and she asked for board participation in selecting a firm.

Director Shriner asked John Warren if marketing is typically an objective or a goal of the Strategic Plan. To this Mr. Warren confirmed that it was a goal.

Director Shriner also shared that marketing is a topic of interest for many in the community. In the past, based on the recommendation of a board member with marketing experience, Cordillera used a Denver firm. After nine months, the contract was terminated because of the bizarre national-type pursuits that were recommended by the firm, including one that involved hosting dinners across the country with celebrity chefs. The board should seek to retain a firm that understands what Cordillera is trying to accomplish now and into the future.

CMD Director Bentley explained two different approaches to marketing: one that reaches out to the world versus one that lets Vail Resorts attract visitors and then market to the visitors when they are in the valley. In the past, there was a strong drive to prospect all over the world. He encouraged using a local firm and attracting people who are already visiting.

CMD Director Egan shared a similar view but in relation to The Club. Both Vail Resort and The Club through Troon spend marketing money. The Marketing Committee should coordinate with The Club.

Director Shriner agreed. Previously CMD/CPOA worked with The Club, the Lodge and Cordillera Valley Club on marketing. The Boards could ask for them to participate again.

Director Smith shared that it is important for the Boards to define the objectives first, some of which will come from the Strategic Planning Committee. The committee and boards need to define what is being sought in the future. He advised having someone bring us through the process to help define the goals such as Cotton and Company that develops a bottom up approach. The marketing plan can be a cornerstone of the long-range plan. In the past, large amounts of money were spent, like advertising in the New York Times, which never achieved any goals. The boards need to be cognizant of previous failures.

Directors Grier and Shriner for CPOA and Directors George and Bentley from CMD volunteered to be on the committee. Director Smith is an alternate.

Athletic Center Operations, Repairs and Capital Improvements

There is a new employee at the ACC, Polly Johnson, who is already having a positive impact on the operations. Recreation Director Joe Helminski sought board approval to modify the ACC hours to 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. with no access after 9 p.m. so the facility could be staffed at all times. This proposed time change is meant to enhance customer service and eliminate safety concerns. Property owners can still access the facility from 4 a.m. to 6 a.m. with a key fob.

Director Smith noted that the hours are perfectly reasonable and saw no reason not to implement them.

Director More asked if there were regular users late at night that would negatively be impacted by the time change. To this Recreation Director Helminski confirmed that usage data for late night was minimal.

Recreation Director Helminski also discussed upcoming capital projects that were approved during the 2018 budget process and was seeking re-approval. The projects include: replacing the common area flooring, repairing the pickleball and tennis courts, ordering new furniture for the pool and installing keyless locks in the locker rooms.

Director Brooks was a proponent of the locker change because of his experiences with the current locks not working. He also proposed renting lockers to help offset the cost of the new keyless system.

Design Review Board Fees

General Manager Oys initiated the discussion of the DRB fees reminding the boards that the last fee schedule was adopted in April 2017.

Director More shared there is a basic $200 fee regardless of what a property owner does to their home. She thinks the fee is too high especially in enclave neighborhoods where approval is already given by the enclave. She would also like to reduce the fee for new construction.

DRB Administrator Millie Aldrich noted that the DRB was unaware of this conversation. She typically presents to the DRB the tracking of fees to projects and other expenses. Rates were raised when the DRB saw small projects going in the red, costing the CPOA more than what the fees were generating. Rates on new construction were not raised. Rates at Beaver Creek, Arrowhead, Singletree and the Valley Club were compared prior to the rate increase. Since the rate increase on small projects went into effect the DRB is collecting adequate fees to cover expenses.

Director Brooks shared that he lives in an enclave. The association looks at ascetics when reviewing plans for modifications. Cordillera might need additional drawings. He does not think it is fair to change the fee for enclaves and not everyone else.

Director More specified that she was referring to making fee changes for painting, roofs and railing systems. When replacing like with like, a property owner is not incurring significant review time because the similar item has already been approved.

CMD Director George reminded the Boards that DRB involvement is also for compliance. To this DRB Administrator Aldrich shared that she confirms that a proposed change is included in the guidelines and that it already has approval from the enclave board. Setbacks and easements are not addressed within the enclave HOA purview, so she has to make sure there is no encroachment onto another property.

CMD Director George asked for clarification on adding a window. To this DRB Administrator responded that it is dependent on whether it is a new window, a replacement or just maintenance.

General Manager Oys directed that this topic be added to the next DRB agenda to discuss pros and cons of the fee structure and any revisions for consideration.

Director Shriner shared that the DRB checks the fees on a regular basis. Last year the DRB lost $12,000 because there is less construction than in the past. It is not a revenue source.

DRB Administrator Aldrich shared that she has been tracking for five years and she notices a wave-type pattern to the construction activity; however, there is a base-line expense for administering DRB business that are not project related expenses.
